Investment approach and Objectives

BDL Rempart is an Equity Long Short fund invested in equities listed on the regulated markets of the European Union and the OCDE Countries. The fund performance relies on a stock picking process, on the long and short sides of the book, driven by fundamentals and a proprietary research. Exposures result from investment ideas.

The use of these instruments can lead to a leverage effect. This mechanism amplifies the investment capacity. This leverage effect leads to an increased risk of capital loss or potential return.

Monthly Comment

In March, the BDL Rempart fund posted a performance of +2.5% versus +0.3% for the benchmark index. The buy pocket generated +0.5% alpha, while the sell pocket cost -0.1%. Net positive exposure to the European market (SXXR) returned +2.1%.

The buy pocket made a positive contribution to performance. Daimler Truck (+0.8%) published its 2023 results on March 1. They demonstrate the Group's transformation since its IPO, with industrial margins now in double digits (10.1%) and cash generation close to €3 billion. The guidance for 2024 also reassured the market, with sales expected to remain stable or increase, an industrial margin estimated at between 9.0% and 10.5%, and a slight increase in cash flow, confirming the resilience of the company's business model. BNP Paribas (+0.8%) rebounded strongly in March after the company provided updated guidance on net income for 2024, indicating that it would increase from adjusted 2023 levels and implementing an additional 400 million euro cost savings plan. The announcement coincided with a financial industry conference in London, which attracted a large number of generally optimistic participants. Intesa San Paolo (+0.5%) continued its very strong performance since the start of the year thanks to expectations of solid net interest income, as ECB rate cut forecasts were revised downwards and pushed back to the second half of 2024. JD Sports (+0.4%) gave further details of its 2023 annual results and published its expectations for 2024. These were 4% below investors' expectations, but a very negative market position, improved reporting (details and frequency) long requested by investors, and a confident management during the call with analysts enabled the share price to recover. TotalEnergies (+0.4%) benefited from a rise in oil prices, linked to strong demand, the maintenance of quotas by OPEC+ and a heightened perception of geopolitical risks. In addition, the company continues to implement significant share buybacks.

Conversely, it is the thematic basket of stocks we consider too expensive that is the main detractor (-0.6%). Just Eat TakeAway (-0.4%) published at the end of March a 2024 guidance just in line with expectations (€450m EBITDA), but we still see various areas for operational improvement to beat expectations, both on EBITDA and cash flow (€540m and €150m in our view). The Group can count on margin expansion in key countries (UK, Germany). JDE peets (-0.3%) declined due to uncertainty over governance, with the dismissal of CEO Fabien Simon and the appointment of interim CEO Luc Vandevelde. On the other hand, Robusta coffee continues to rise (+7.5% in March), which increases input costs for JDEP. We remain shareholders as we see an inflexion in market share in Europe since H2 2023, the company is now well invested, and the valuation is very discounted.

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.
They are not constant over time and are not guaranteed.

GLOSSARY

Alpha : The alpha measures the performance of a portfolio compared to its benchmark. A negative alpha means that the fund has done less well than its indicator (e.g. the indicator has risen by 10% in one year and the fund has only risen by 6%: its alpha is equal to - 4). A positive alpha characterizes a fund that has done better than its indicator (e.g. the indicator has risen by 6% in one year and the fund has risen by 10%: its alpha is equal to 4).
Bottom-up approach : Bottom-up investment : Investment based on the analysis of companies, where the history, management and potential of the companies in question are considered more important than the general trends of the market or the sector (as opposed to top-down investment).
Beta: Beta measures the existing relationship between fluctuations in the fund's net asset values and fluctuations in the levels of its benchmark. A beta of less than 1 indicates that the fund is "cushioning" the fluctuations of its index (beta = 0.6 means that the fund increases by 6% if the index increases by 10% and decreases by 6% if the index decreases by 10%). A beta greater than 1 indicates that the fund "amplifies" the fluctuations of its index (beta = 1.4 means that the fund rises by 14% when the index rises by 10% but also falls by 14% when the index falls by 10%). A beta lower than 0 indicates that the fund reacts inversely to the fluctuations of its index (beta = -0.6 means that the fund falls by 6% when the index rises by 10% and vice versa).
Sharpe ratio: The Sharpe ratio measures the excess return over the risk-free rate divided by the standard deviation of that return. It is a measure of the marginal return per unit of risk. When it is positive, the higher it is, the more risk is rewarded. A negative Sharpe ratio does not necessarily mean that the portfolio has had a negative performance but that it has been lower than a risk-free investment.
SICAV: Société d'Investissement à Capital Variable (open-ended investment company)
Investment rate/exposure rate: The investment rate corresponds to the amount of assets invested expressed as a % of the portfolio. The exposure rate corresponds to the investment rate plus the impact of derivative strategies. It corresponds to the percentage of real assets exposed to a given risk. Derivative strategies may be designed to increase exposure (boosting strategy) or reduce exposure (immunizing strategy) to the underlying asset.
Net asset value: Price of a unit (in the case of a mutual fund) or a share (in the case of a SICAV).
VaR: The value at risk (VaR) represents the maximum potential loss of an investor on the value of a portfolio of financial assets given a holding horizon (20 days) and a confidence interval (99%). This potential loss is represented as a percentage of the portfolio's total assets. It is calculated from a sample of historical data (over a period of 2 years)
Alpha : Bloomberg data.
Cyclical stocks: A cyclical stock is, as its name indicates, a stock that will follow a cycle. It is linked to the economic cycle. It will take off in good times of economic recovery or growth and will decline at the slightest downturn. Cyclical stocks therefore have a cyclical evolution.
Short selling: Selling forward an asset that one does not hold on the day the sale is negotiated but that one is in a position to hold on the day it is expected to be delivered. If the value of the asset declines after the short sale, the seller can buy it back for cash and realize a capital gain. The potential gain is limited to the value of the asset. If the value of the asset rises, the seller is exposed to an unlimited risk of loss.
